JITNEY BUS ASSAILED BY TRACTION CO. HEAD

George E. Hamilton Hits Public Utilities and Interstate Commerce Boards.

Declaring the jitney bus a menace to the established order of public transportation service here, and asking full protection of the traction lines against the invasion of this "experimentalism," George E. Hamilton, president of the Capital Traction Company, bitterly arraigned the Public Utilities Commission, and Congress before the Federation of Citizens' Associations at the Chamber of Commerce rooms last pight.

He declared that apparently these bodies sad not been actuated by the spirit of fair play toward corporations halled by President Wilson in an address before the midyear conference of the American Electric Railway Association here recently. He said he believed with the President, that the olde order of susto the established order of public that a new era of fair play and un-derstanding was at hand.

He reviewed the trials and tribula-tions of the Public Service Corpora-tion, and said that if the Public Utili-ties Commission had a beter under-standing and fuller knowledge of con-ditions, it would within the law pro-tect the established order rather than to coquette with the jiney fad, and oher experiments in regulation.

Commission Unfair.

Mr. Hamilton Intimated that the Utilities Commission had not been fair, when after being organized but a year, it had with such short period of preparation gone before Congress and declared regulation of utilities impractical and appeared as an advocate of cal and appeared as an advocate of public ownership.

He said that if fairness and justice h daactuated the Interestate Commerce Commission, when that body was given control of the street railways in 1908, it would not have given peremptory orders for a change of equipment and double-truck cars, that compelled heavy outlays. At this time, he said, the company was compelled to discard perfectly good single truck equipment, in good condition and with many years of life for double truck cars. This necessitated more nower and a new power house, different trackage, and a rebuilding of car barns, just after expensive extensions had been ordered by Congress, he said.

Mr. Hamilton said that if Congress had been actuated by a spirit of fairness it would not have haddled one-third of the cost of a new Pennsylvania avenue bridge over Rock Creek upon the railroad, when it was not only not using this bridge, but had previously been put off it by Congress, constitutions of the congress, constitutions of the congress, constitutions of the congress, constitutions of the congress of the congress using this bridge, but had previously been put off it by Congress. His company, he said, originally used the Pennsylvania avenue bridge, but in 1875 it was required to lay new tracks and use the M street bridge. It had to pay $10,000 for the rebuilding of this structure. When the cable line was laid, he continued, permission was asked to use the Pennsylvania avenue bridge again, and it was refused. bridge again, and it was refused.

"But now." he said "that a new Ave-"But now," he said, "that a new Avenue bridge is building, we must change all our trackage, use this bridge, and pay one-third of the cost, that may reach $1,800,000, in spite of the fact that the highest past assessment for such use in the District was 15 per cent."

The Capital Traction Company, Mr. Hamilton said, had given the Calvert street bridge to the city.

Mr. Oyster dilated on the local street car serice and said "there is considerable water stock in the railway corporations of the District." "I do not want to answer the gentle-man's statement about municipal ownership," replied Mr. Hamilton, "but when the gentleman uses this opor-tunity to talk about watered stock, I must say that if the complaint against watered stock reached the magnitude of the complaint against the untair as-sessments now going on in the District there would, indeed, be a great complaint.

Others intervened and there was demand from several quarters for "regu-lar order," to end the discussion. Mr. Hamilton withdrew his remarks. Mrs. Oyster said that the District had the best system of assessment and the best assessor in its history, and the incident was closed.

W. McK. Clayton asked Mr. Hamilton why universal transfers could not be given, and he replied that this could not be done unless all lines were bought under one control.

Aller Davis principal of tassiness

Allan Davis, principal of business High School, asked why school tickets at a lower rate could not be given high school pupils. Mr. Hamilton replied that no cheaper fare could be given without curtailment of service. Mr. Hamilton reviewed the history of the Capital Traction Company. He ad-vocated suffrage in the District, saying that its denial was destructive of the spirit of American citizenship.

The association appointed a special committee to receive an account for funds contributed by the member organizations to defray the necessary expenses of the citizens' committee, to present the District's side in the Congressional investigation of the fiscal relations of the District, and Federal governments.

governments. A resolution by Mr. Clayton was passed expressing the sentiment of that body to the effect that any employ ment of legal help as such, by the com mittee, was not necessary.

The Safest Investments Are those that do not fluctuate during dis-turbed conditions of the money or stock mar-kets. First deed of trust notes (first mort-gages), well secured on real estate in the District of Columbia, constitute "gitt-edge" investments. They do not depend upon the financial responsibility of individuals or on, porations for their stability, and are exempt from taxation as personal property. We can supply such investments in amounts from $100 upward. Send for booklet "Concerning Loans and investments."
